TINLEY WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS CHRISTMAS PARTY

Christmas spirit held sway at the Tinley Park Woman's Club meeting Wednesday afternoon when the members met in the home of Mrs. Irvin Stover. Mrs. Stover, always versatile home in keeping with the season, and artistic, had decorated her home on the dining room table, at one end was a Christmas scene of two angels made of cellophane straws, singing carols, standing near a mirror lake and backed by three large Mrs. Wagner, vice president, cellophane trees.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Ebenhack was appointed to purchase boxes of kleenex as a gift from the Tinley Park Club to each girl in the Park Ridge School for Girls as a Christmas gift. Mrs. Henry Breck War Bond chairman reported the sale of $287.50 in War bonds and stamps for the month of December.

Mrs. Ebenhack program chairman led in the singing of carols with Mrs. Jobson at the piano, and then presented Mrs. L. G. Bruder who gave a review of the lovely old Christmas story "The Bird's Christmas Carol". The listeners were most intent and interested as the story progressed, for Mrs. Bruder, a reader herself, was able to present the story in a most pleasing manner. She was assisted by Mrs. Wm. Semmler who sang the two songs mentioned in the story, "Carol, Brothers Carol" and "My Ain Country" accompanying herself on the piano.

Tea was served from the dining table with Mrs. Bruder pouring.

Frankfort Lions Sponsor Jolly Xmas Party

The Lions roared again. This time to the tune of Jingle Bells as it was a Christmas party with the wives as guests, Tuesday evening in the dining room of the Frankfort Methodist church.

The long tables were pretty in Christmas decorations and with lighted candles and favors at each place containing three cookies. Goose was queen this time and was done to a turn, with all the trimmings.

Group singing was enjoyed with Warren Heisner, accompanying on the piano.

President Lion Albert Krusemark, Jr., presided and introduced the chairman of the social hour, Mayor George Sangmeister and his assistant, Wallace Weichbrodt who distributed the gifts (comical) which the men had brought for the ladies and the ladies had brought for the men.

It seemed that chicken was striving for a prominent place as there were a number who received a good size tin hen which accommodated by laying several eggs, right then and there.

Dr. Hedges always studious, as he is, was presented with home work problems. He soon had them solved. There were horns also, and the mayor was not slow in playing a tune on the one he received; brooms there were to sweep the way clear for Santa, several received some very comfortable seats, carved of soap; handy bottle of often much needed medicine, nigger babies, games and so on, which created much merriment. In all the ladies thought the Lions were grand and hoped they enjoyed having the ladies with them enough to repeat the affair at another time.

Help Shortage Felt In Christmas Mail Rush

Postmaster Paul Rauhoff of Tinley Park wishes to call the attention of the patrons of the Tinley Park post office to the following urgent request about Christmas mail:

Some of the public—but not enough, are heeding the warnings of the Post Office Department that Christmas gifts must be mailed this year earlier than ever before, it reports from seven of the largest post offices in the United States prove to be typical. Six of these offices, queried on Christmas mailings, reported that gift parcels had started moving through the mails from 10 to 12 days earlier than in previous years. The seventh reported some rise in parcel post but no broad gain in Christmas mailings. Christmas cards—one of the most difficult problems because of the public's habit of mailing them in a last minute deluge—also have started to move, but in only small numbers.

Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, who has held repeated conferences with high officials of his department on the Christmas mail problem, called attention to the absolute necessity of public cooperation.

"My Department is handling a variety of big wartime tasks, in addition to the distribution of civilian mail," he said. "We handle a vast amount of Army and Navy mail with in this country until it reaches military and naval stations or embarkation ports, where it is taken over for delivery by the Army and Navy. We write many millions of dollars' worth of war bonds, sell immense numbers of war stamps, handle a huge volume of official correspondence and printed matter. Our service is burdened with war work and so is the transportation system that carries the mails."

"There has never been a time in the history of the postal service when there was more necessity for the public to mail parcels and cards early if delivery is to be made by Christmas."

Postal employees are going to do their best, as always, to see that the Christmas mails are delivered on time, said Ambrose O'Connell, first Assistant Postmaster General, in charge of postal personnel. Postmasters already have done splendid work in calling the unprecedented problem to public attention through newspapers and radio, and in preparing to meet the rush of mailings.

But this year deliveries on time are impossible unless the public mails its parcels earlier than ever before. We have reduced the age limit for extra personnel from 18 to 16 but the thousands of persons being hired are inexperienced and relatively slow in handling mail. And there were already many thousands of inexperienced workers in the service replacing men who have gone in to the Army and Navy.

An attempt was made to send Christmas stockings to close relatives of students in the school. It is hoped that thru the sale of additional tickets more will be added to the list. Many letters of gratitude and appreciation have been received.

TO SHOW MOVIE "BOMBING OF LONDON" AT MOKENA SCHOOL TONIGHT

The chairman of the Educational Committee of the Mokena Council of Defense announces that the films, The Burning of London and Fighting Incendiary Bombs will be shown this Friday night at the Mokena Public school at 8:00 pm. These pictures are well worth while and if you did not see them when shown previously don't fail to do so Friday. This is probably the last time they will be shown in Mokena.

The boxes for receiving discarded silk and nylon hose, which have been placed in several locations are still empty. Haven't the women of this community any stockings that they can donate to the effort of swatting the Jap and sinking the Nazi? This is just asking that you donate some thing that has no longer any value to you but can be reworked into something vitally necessary for the winning of the war. It takes about fifteen pair to make up 1 lb, so don't delay any longer in turning these old stockings over to war use.

God of War Dampens The Christmas Spirit

The Decoration committee of the Mokena Civic Association went to the Office of Price Administration to get the correct information as to illumination of outside Xmas decoration and were advised that on either coast it was prohibited, in this area while the OPA had issued no orders, it did however deem it inadvisable and in bad form this year on account of the tremendous use of power it would require and they are saving all power possible. They have however issued an order which requires some person to be in position to blackout on 60 seconds notice. The Association will therefore comply with the OPA and will not display the usual Christmas tree.

NOTICE!

Christmas coming on Friday next week, we will issue this newspaper Thursday morning and all news and adv. copy must be in no later than Tuesday morning.

THE EDITOR

BABSON BACKGROUND

American business has no more inspiring personality than Roger W. Babson, internationally known business commentator and investment adviser. An outstanding feature of his philosophy has been his lifelong insistence on the importance of religion in business.

Born in 1875, reared in an old fashioned atmosphere of hard work and hustle on a farm in Gloucester, Mr. Babson went to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Upon graduating in 1898, he turned instinctively to financial and business activities.

His exertions, however, undermined his health; he contracted tuberculosis and he was sent West "as good as dead". It was while he was convalescing from this dread malady that he worked out some of the possibilities and problems of business statistics.

That was forty years ago. Today his weekly statistical and financial reports are read by thousands of businessmen and his research work is carried on by a large staff of workers.

Mr. Babson founded Babson Institute for men; and, in cooperation with Mrs. Babson, developed Webber College for women, both nationally known educational institutions. Here young men and women may concentrate more in the fundamentals and less on the frills of business.

To millions of newspaper readers, Mr. Babson is best known by his familiar weekly stories on business which appear in more than 400 papers throughout North America. Of unbounded energy, Roger W. Babson has probably done more than any other man to bring statistics to life, to instill a broader vision in business men, and to publicize the ups-and-downs of the business cycle.

SEE "GOOD NIGHT LADIES" DURING HOLIDAY SEASON

Richard Gallagher and Christian Rudolph Ebsen, better known respectively as Skeets and Buddy, have considerable in common. Both clamored out of the sticks to make their first big hits on Broadway, both graduated to the films, both are genial comedians, and both are sharing current billing at the Blackstone, where they are playing in the unhibited frolic "Good Night Ladies".

Skeets Gallagher has the bigger history. A Hoosier boy from Terre Haute, he played in amateur theatricals at the Indiana State University and promptly moved into vaudeville.

Three years of two a day turned him into a headliner. A producer named Joseph M. Gaites thereupon named him a featured stage comedian in Up in the Clouds. The show was seen by the late Charles Dillingham and from there Gallagher's place on Broadway was set. The heart of a troupier brought him back to the boards. Here he is.

As for Ebsen, the gangling, easy going drawler with the lightning toes he held a natural aversion to stage work in general and dancing in particular until heredity just naturally got the better of him. His father had the largest dancing school in Florida. In Orlando, Fla., Buddy grew up with the resolve of a doctor. He took a premedical course at the University of Florida, but when with hunger knocking at his ribs, it began to look like a premedical treatment course instead, Ebsen decided that dancing wasn't sissy stuff after all.

He gave up his soda jerking job and made a hit a soft shoe cowboy in Ziegfeld's "Whoopie" in New York.

Then, teamed with his sister Vilma took to the road returning to Broadway in a featured place in Flying Colors. His biggest New York hit, however, was with Dixie Dunbar in Yokel Boy.

Stalingrad, City of Steel, Flame, Glory

Mail from Home in Africa

By Frank Cervasi

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

As any top sergeant will tell you, the cornerstone of morale among troops is mail from home. In this respect, our troops in Africa have been luckier than most soldiers fighting on distant fronts.

I was present when they opened letters postmarked ten days and less from the date of receipt. You can watch their spirits rise at mail time, as unmistakably as the red column moves upward in a thermometer when you put a match under the bulb.

They provide a fair sample of what our army is like in the field. A few months ago, men who now live in tents, barracks and huts were soda jerkers, business men and mechanics. They were junkmen from Joplin, well drillers from Waco, pants pressers from Philly. But they look and act like an army.

Their equipment from the neat insignia on shoulders and collars to their weapons, is indubitably the best in the world, and the envy of all soldiers who see it.

Proud of Their Equipment.

Pride in themselves, but particularly in their equipment, is one of our soldiers' characteristics that impresses you most. In the air force, judging from the conversation at mealtimes and while waiting about for the boys to return from their raids, airplanes supersede even the soldiers' classic subject of small talk—women. They'll talk airplanes until your head buzzes. They'll talk you into a tail spin, for instance, about Minnie.

Minnie was born in the factories of the Consolidated Aircraft company in California about two years ago, which is a long time for an airplane. Last December 31, Minnie was flown to Trinidad by a redhead named H. M. Markey of Dill Field, Florida.

In Trinidad, Minnie developed a leaky gas tank and was laid over for repairs so long that the boys speculated on whether she'd ever get away.

One morning Capt. Horace Wade, a slight, sandy-haired fellow from Magnolia, Texas, with a sort of half-pay blond mustache, took Minnie off on what was to be a remarkable career. Minnie fought the Japs off Borneo, returning from one mission with the scalp of a Jap cruiser dangling from her blunt and lethal snout.

Minnie flew supplies into the beleaguered Philippines and brought out valuable pilots who thus lived to fight another day. She did reconnaissance work through acres of flak over Burma, Malaya and the Dutch East Indies. Minnie flew General Wavell from Java to Ceylon, evacuated women and children out of Borneo. She carried Brereton all over India on a survey of new air routes and, just for exercise, bombed Rangoon once.

Now Minnie's in the Middle East, her complexion blotched by wind, sand and monsoon, but coveted by the British, who can't have her.

Men of Wade's squadron feel that Minnie after more than four hundred hours in the air and more than 100,000 air-miles—which is about four times around the world—has earned a rest.

She lies out in a field now, carefully tended by Sergeants Pekuri, Hitchcock and others, who keep her ready for more hours, more miles, but not in action. They're afraid something might happen to her. When she dies, they want to see Minnie die this side of heaven, where they can pick up the pieces and give them proper burial.

Group of Raiders Expected.

The major interrupted this sentimental small talk about Minnie to remind us that a group of raiders would be getting in soon. We went out and found the steps under the control tower crowded with men, all talking in a subdued way.

We lighted cigarettes, flashes of lighters and matches revealing lean sunburned features of American faces.

Soon the first ship's motors sounded overhead, and the control tower gave her the green light. There was deep silence on the runway. Men watched the landing intently, catching every detail of operation.

One after another they came in, until all had checked in except one. Conversation stopped, and all waited quietly, smoking in the dark.

Then we heard her motors. The sound men made at that moment was not exactly a cheer, but something like that—a sudden animated sound of relieved voices talking about everything except that airplane up there. Very soon she was down, too, and all the planes had returned safely. Figures dim in the darkness started piling out of trucks that had gone to various planes to take off crews.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Rubber is used on planes for lining gas tanks and fuel lines, for de-icing instruments, for insulating cabins with weatherstripping, for lining flying suits to make them more proof and for dozens of other purposes.

Proper inflation means maximum miles. A tire under-inflated 20 per cent (24 instead of 30 pounds) will reduce its life by 15 per cent and 25 per cent of the mileage will be lost in a tire that is 30 per cent under-inflated.

The Baruch Committee anticipated that 53,000 long tons of rubber would be imported by the U. S. in the last 16 months starting July 1st last.

No more auto chases in movies for the duration. No more turns at high speed on squealing tires and no more new cars. Possible audience reaction to the waste of rubber—and speeding—brought the taboo.

THE Secret OF THE MARSHBANKS

• BY KATHLEEN NORRIS •

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: An orphan, Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings knows almost nothing of her early history when, according to the wishes of her guardians, Judge Judson Marshbanks and Emma Haskell she becomes the secretary to Mrs. Porteous Porter, wealthy San Francisco invalid. Busy as she is, Cherry sees the Judge from time to time and meets the members of his household; his dictatorial old mother; Amy Marshbanks, debutante daughter of his dead brother, Fred; and Fran, his gay young second wife. Cherry soon learns from Emma that her mother (never married) had been Emma's sister Charlotte; that her father was the judge's brother Fred—Amy's father—and that shortly after Cherry and Amy were born Cherry's mother had switched the two babies. The poor Cherry Rawlings is really the rich Amy Marshbanks! The Judge confirms the amazing story, but to protect Amy his mother burns certain papers that would have proved its truth. Meanwhile Cherry had fallen in love with Kelly Coates, a young artist (who for a time had been infatuated with Fran Marshbanks); and Amy is determined to marry Count Mario (Gogo) Constantino. The Judge is shot to death in his library and everybody is under suspicion. Kelly finally convinces Cherry that he is over his infatuation for Fran and she happily agrees to marry him. Amy flies to Reno to marry Gogo. Cherry discovers there are gunpowder marks on Fran's negligee. Police find love letters Kelly had written to Fran, but he assures Cherry they are harmless. Returning from a restaurant to the Marshbanks home Kelly and Cherry find four officers waiting at the door.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XVII

"You go upstairs and get into dry things," Kelly said to Cherry. "No use your catching pneumonia."

He sat down at the desk, and Cherry reluctantly went away. May was waiting for her in the hall and not only personally managed the hot bath but descended afterward to the kitchen for tea and toast.

"If you aren't in for flu, I'll miss my guess!" said May.

When she came upstairs with the tray, it was to ask Cherry if she would have her little mid-afternoon meal in old Mrs. Marshbanks' room. "She don't feel very good and she asked if you wasn't too tired would you come in and see her."

"Well, of course," Cherry said. Feeling aching and dull, she was not only vaguely flattered by the proposal, but she was glad of any company on this dreadful afternoon.

Cherry found her grandmother restless and uneasy. But to Cherry's great relief she seemed disinclined to speak of the affairs of the moment.

The clock struck four. The old woman looked across at her companion, her voice sounded oddly firm and clear in the silence.

"Judson was an honest man," she said, "but he never was fair to his brother, Frederick."

Cherry was unable to speak. She felt her throat thicken; tears stung her eyes. The proud, stiff old voice went on.

"I would be very sorry to think that anything I had ever done had hurt you," said Mrs. Marshbanks. "When something surprises you and—distresses you, sometimes you act without thinking."

"I don't think it matters much now," Cherry said, with some difficulty. "It might have been unimportant. Nobody knew what was in that envelope."

"It was unfortunate. I suppose," the old woman said reluctantly and proudly, "that my boy inherited his disposition from me. He would not be crossed."

"You are much stronger than your father," said Mrs. Marshbanks. The girl felt an odd sense of pride. It was something—even on this strange, terrible day—to have won the respect of her strange, alienated old grandmother.

"You can stand what would have broken him," Mrs. Marshbanks presently added. "You know, I suppose, that Judson left you a little property in his will? What I have will be yours, too," she went on, unemotionally. "It is not what you might have had, but it is something."

"Thank you," Cherry said simply. There was a tap at the door and she sprang to it, her heart hammering wildly. It was Kelly.

He looked tired, and was graver in manner than she had ever seen him.

"Fran and I are going out with these lads a while," he said, without preamble. "I wanted you to know. See you later."

She caught at him, her eyes frightened. He smiled and was gone.

Mrs. Marshbanks and Cherry sat quietly, saying little. It was a relief to both when Greg came in.

"What's happened?" he inquired. "Martin looked like Boris Karloff when he let me in."

"Nothing's really happened; at least we don't believe it has," Cherry told him, choosing her words carefully. "But Fran went sort of crazy today and told them a long story about how she killed your father."

"What do you know about that?" Greg commented scornfully. "It's got on her nerves. What'd they do?"

"Well, she and Kelly Coates went out with them—to police headquarters, I suppose."

"Coates, too?"

"Hah! Greg ejaculated, more seriously. I never knew there was anything going on there!"

"If it is to Amy's interest, zen we must fight," the count put in.

"It was over anyway," the girl stated. "And he and I were going to be married," she added, after a pause.

"It sounded as if you said—you didn't say . . ." old Mrs. Marshbanks stopped in mid-sentence, looking keenly at the girl.

"Yes, we planned it only a few days ago," Cherry said dully.

"Fran knows it?"

"Nobody knows it."

"But if that's the case, how could she possibly have quarreled with Jud about him?"

"That's one reason why I think she didn't."

"You mean you're to marry Kelly?" The older woman still found it hard to believe.

"Some day," Cherry answered simply, looking away to hide her filling eyes.

"And how long has this been going on?"

"Ever since I first saw him—for me. He walked into my life," Cherry said, "and he's never walked out."

"Well," said the old lady dryly, "that complicates matters."

"I should think it would simplify matters; I should think it would let Kelly out of it, at least," Greg said.

"I don't think anything any more," his grandmother stated wearily. "I guess I've lived long enough. So you got him away from Fran, did you?"

"That was all over. They hadn't seen each other for months. But Fran suddenly got all worked up about it. She had letters from him that the police found."

"Those letters!" the older woman said scornfully.

As Cherry was about to leave old Mrs. Marshbanks, Amy and Count Gogo burst in.

"Gran, darling," Amy said with her kiss, "we were going through town on our way to Del Monte and we got homesick, and so we're putting off our honeymoon, and we came home to see you! You kiss her, too, Gogo!"

Cherry informed the newcomers that Fran had been asked to go to police headquarters "to explain something," and that Fran had "sort of broken down" earlier in the day, and they were questioning her.

"But why? She doesn't know anything about it!" Amy exclaimed, aghast.

"You cannot possibly know zat, dear," said the count.

"She said it was on his account."

"The thing is, Gran," Amy burst out, "that yesterday when I grabbed some things to go and meet Gogo there was some mail on the hall table, two or three letters for me, and I took them along. We didn't look at them until this morning and then I—Gogo felt—we both felt, that it might be important, and that we ought to talk to someone about it."

"If it is for Aimee's comforts, zen it is important to me," Gogo said impressively.

"You say it's business, Amy," old Mrs. Marshbanks said, with a level look at Gogo. "What sort of business?"

"It's from some lawyer, Gran," Amy explained. "Mr. George Comstock. He says that owing to the sudden death of his father, Judge Thomas Comstock, affairs in the office—I'll read it," Amy interrupted herself.

"Affairs in the office have been in some inevitable confusion, owing to the recent sudden death of my father," she read aloud. "My partner, Mr. Edward Brace, and I have been attempting to the best of our ability to straighten out his affairs. We now discover that a document deliverable to you on the occasion of your twenty-first birthday, November seventeenth of this year, has been overlooked, and is now eleven days overdue. The envelope, sealed, was deposited here at the request of your father, the late Frederick Archibald Marshbanks, at the time of his death. The accompanying instructions request that we also get in touch with Charlotte Rawlings, whose whereabouts we are now endeavoring to ascertain. Assuring you of our regret in the unavoidable delay . . ."

Amy stopped short, lowered the hand holding the letter, looked blankly at her grandmother. "What on earth does it mean?" she demanded.

"Why, I don't know, dear," faltered the old lady.

"Aimee has told me of a story told by Cherie here," the count began anxiously. "Coot it haf anything to do wiz zis?"

"If it is a duplicate of that paper Uncle Jud said he had . . ."

Amy added, again leaving her sentence unfinished.

"If it is to Aimee's interest, zen we must fight," the count put in.

"Cherry, did they write you?" Amy demanded.

"The Comstocks were great friends of your father," old Mrs. Marshbanks contributed. "But I never heard . . ." She stopped short, shaking her head.

"It seem to me zat I should have known of zis, Aimee," said the count.

"Gogo, why should I tell you a lot of family rubbish that I didn't believe myself!" Amy answered sharply. "Up to now—up to the time I got this letter, there wasn't any proof of anything!"

"I am sure," the old woman began faintly. "I am sure there isn't any truth in what Judson said: It put Amy in such a terrible position. Oh, my child," Amy's grandmother said, in a burst of anguish, "why did you marry until this matter was settled? How could you rush off without telling us—without . . ."

"But you are not saying zat Aimee perhaps will be robt of all ze money her grandfather gave her?" the count put in, in a tone of stupefaction.

There was a brief silence. The count moved to Amy and touched her on the shoulder.

"It will be very hardt, it will seem very strange to my frienz, my frienz zat I have promise to help," he said in an annoyed tone. "I tell zem to come and stay wiz me, I tell zem zat my horse—my house, all is for zem." His reproachful look swept the circle; he spread his hands open, appealing for sympathy.

"Your room is ready, Countess," May said, from the doorway. Cherry saw a little pleased look, a mollified expression, come into Amy's face. The title was impressive to them all.

"The first thing that Gogo said when we read this horrible letter," Amy said, looking first at her grandmother, then at Cherry, "was that it wouldn't be fair to me—it would put me in a false position for him to have married me thinking that I was—well, was rich and that I could help out all these people he has promised to help, and that he could pay up some bills. As if," Amy diverged suddenly with an attempt to speak scornfully that Cherry found infinitely pathetic. "as if money mattered! It was only—Gogo says it's only that he expected something different and made all these plans, and now of course he won't be able to carry them out."

"We'll know tomorrow," Cherry said, one hand over her aching eyes.

"He says, Gogo says, that it's a bad sign that they want to get in touch with you, Cherry," Amy observed, as she trailed away disconsolately, leaving Cherry alone with her grandmother.

The old lady extended a hand to her, and as Cherry went to stand before her, grasping it, she drew the girl down so that Cherry's ear was close.

"She's destroyed her life!" the old woman said, in an electric whisper. "The money was all he wanted."

Crossing the hall, Cherry could hear Gogo's voice speaking high and angrily in Amy's room; she heard nothing from Amy in reply.

With a heart's pang of sympathy for Amy, Cherry turned away from her own doorway, and went downstairs. When she reached the lower hallway Fran and Kelly were just coming in.

Both looked beaten. Kelly's face was gray, and Fran was obviously exhausted. Her eyes, sunken in rings of pale violet, went almost without recognition to Cherry's. She said faintly she was going to rest before dinner.

"You'll want your dinner upstairs, Fran," Cherry said, all sympathy. "No, no," the other woman said feverishly. "I don't want to be alone. I'll lie down for a while!"

WHATEVER else has happened or might still happen, football's worst prophet or predictor has at last been uncovered. He is the one who said, before the season opened, that on account of the war there would be no sectional arguments this season and no claim for any national title.

On the contrary, we have seldom heard a louder tumult, most of it in the way of protest. Most of this comes from the Midwest and the South—the two strongest football sectors. Here are some of the charges brought against this department:

1. For not putting Ohio State far in front of the field, with no one else close.
2. For not putting Georgia on top of the pack, with something to spare.
3. For not ranking Wisconsin on top for beating Ohio State decisively.
4. For overplaying Tulsa, with the old run-around—"What did Tulsa beat?"
5. For not giving the Far West a fair break, with the old: "Wait for the Rose Bowl against your Georgia team."
6. For overplaying Boston college, "that kept beating nobody" until it met Holy Cross.
7. For overlooking Auburn and Holy Cross.

A Few Rebuttals

We have a few rebuttals to offer in return. Under present conditions there is no part of the argument that could be called important—but it seems to affect a good many millions.

1-2. We have never attempted to rank Ohio State and Georgia. We haven't any idea what would happen if they met.

3. Wisconsin has had a fine team and a big year. So have others.

4. Tulsa hasn't been overplayed. This Tulsa team is one of the best. Ask Big Steve Owen of the Giants, who has had them scouted.

5. About the Far West—this season it has suffered an almost complete inter-sectional wreckage—T.C.U. beat U.C.L.A.—Tulane walloped Southern California—Notre Dame ran over Stanford and Southern California, 40 points to 0—Ohio State outclassed Southern California—I can find but one West Coast inter-sectional victory; Washington State over Michigan State.

6. "What team did Boston college beat?" What about beating Fordham, 56 to 6, and Fordham was still good enough to beat Missouri and North Carolina Navy? Not so bad. Also, B.C. beat Wake Forest, 27 to 0, and Wake Forest beat Duke, 20 to 7.

7. For "overlooking Auburn and Holy Cross"—They finished as two fine teams—but a football game played in September or October is still a football game—and these two teams lost 8 and were tied twice—partly by poor teams. These are details that few consider. Most of them only remember the last game. There should be a better memory course.

About Georgia Tech

Georgia Tech suffered an even rougher blow than Boston college did.

For through the season Georgia Tech turned in a much better job than the B.C. Eagles.

Don't forget that Georgia Tech beat Auburn, 15 to 0—Notre Dame, 13 to 6, in South Bend—Navy, 21 to 0, on a good Navy day—Duke, 26 to 7, after Duke had just run 62 points against Colgate and Pittsburgh—Kentucky, 47 to 7, after Kentucky had held Georgia to a 7-6 tossup—and then Alabama.

This is certainly as fine a job as any team in the country has offered.

From the Old Coach

At this point we get another squawk from the "old coach" defending the Midwest—

"I wrote you this before," he writes again. "I just asked you suppose Georgia or Boston college or Tulsa had to play Ohio State, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Indiana, Iowa and Notre Dame on successive Saturdays? And throw in the Great Lakes and Iowa Navy when it had its full strength? You know what would happen. Sure, they'd win some. But they'd also lose more than one."

I might also ask what happened to a Pennsylvania team, packed with fine material and certainly ably coached? I can't figure this Red and Blue squad losing to any team in the East. But it was tied by an off-year Princeton eleven and beaten by Navy and Penn State teams.

The sanest spot on the map was Texas, with good teams, that had no claims to make. Texas was just a little more serious about the war. But some team will find that Texas can handle its own in the Cotton Bowl test.

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN HELP

Particularly During Cold Spells

IF YOU HEAT WITH GAS

Set your thermostat at 65° in the daytime, and lower at night. Young children, and sick or elderly people may require a higher temperature for the rooms they occupy, but for most of us 65° is considered adequate.

Stop much loss of heat by use of storm windows, insulation, weather stripping, and careful adjustment of fireplace drafts. Heat no more rooms than necessary. Use your fireplace for supplementary heat.

YOUR GAS RANGE

Don't use your oven for room heating. Cook with a low blue flame, using as little water as possible. Prepare more "one dish meals", cooking more than one kind of food at the same time on the same burner and in the same vessel.

YOUR WATER HEATER

Don't use more hot water than you actually need. Close faucets tightly; repair leaks. Postpone or reduce heavy laundry work on extremely cold days.

YOUR GAS REFRIGERATOR

Allow ample time for cooked foods to cool before putting in refrigerator. Don't waste space in the refrigerator for foods that need not be kept cool, such as jelly, pickles or vegetable shortening. Overcrowding prevents free circulation of cool air.

Gas, too, has gone to war—don't waste it

American Legion Post Orland Park, Ill.

St. Louis, Mo.
December 3, 1942

Dear Sirs:

Just a few lines of thanks for the Orland paper you are sending me. It makes a fellow feel in the pink when he knows that the folks back home are thinking of him. I'm sure that the rest of the boys in the service feel the same way I do. Please excuse the writing. Just got off the train and am a bit shaken up. Thank you.

Sgt. Holz.

Sgt. Edward Holz, Jr, 934th Squadron, Fort Ward, Victoria, Texas.

Because there were only five members present, the meeting of the Orland Park Legion Auxiliary, scheduled for last Friday was not held. Mrs. Elsie Yunker, president announced that an old fashioned Christmas party for the boys in the armed forces would be held under the auspices of the Chicago Daily Times at the Chicago Servicemen's Center at the Auditorium Hotel Bldg., 430 S. Michigan Ave. on Christmas Day. The ladies of the Auxiliary are asked to donate either cash or presents for this party and are also asked to send volunteers to help wrap gifts and aid in preparation for the affair. This will be done on Dec. 18, 19 and 21 from 9 am to 5 pm. Any Auxiliary member who desires to help should contact Mrs. Yunker.

The annual meeting of the Pure Milk Association held in the Orland Park School gym Thursday evening, Dec. 10 was largely attended. The following officers were elected: John Kimmel, pres. Walter Beagley, vice president, Fred Yunker, Sec. Chas. Cooper, Treas. Delegates, Henry Schilling and Harvey Boley. Erickson, pres. of Dist. 13 as well as several other members of the Association were speakers. Talkie movies featuring a comic and travel scenes in Mexico were shown and much enjoyed by all present. Harold Kay recently inducted into service is stationed in Louisiana. His address is Pvt. Harold W. Kay, 366-25251 Co. K, 409th Inf. APO 103, Camp Claiborne, La.

Ray Miller, husband of the former Dorothy Cooper, a patient under observation at the Ingalls Memorial hospital at Harvey underwent an operation for gallstones last week and is improving nicely. He expects to be discharged from the hospital Sunday.

The WSCS of the Methodist church held an all day potluck meeting last Thursday, in the church basement. The annual election of officers took place at this meeting. Mrs. Leonard Kay announced that the committee of Mrs. A. C. Kay, Mrs. Walter Kay and Mrs. Geo. Cox packed and mailed 16 Christmas boxes for the boys in the armed forces affiliated with the Methodist church.

The school library. In spite of the cold and the counter attraction of the Milk Association affair an excellent turnout of members was present. At the business session, which was short it was voted to dispense with the usual Christmas party, which has been given each year for the children of the school. The great increase in the number of the student body over previous years would make such a party an unwieldy affair and this coupled with the fact that a large majority of the student body are in the upper age group and that room parties are given by the individual rooms, the holding of this affair would be a superfluous gesture.

Mrs. F. Colangelo, president and Mrs. Earl Sayers of the PTA of the Doctor school, Dist. 137 were introduced. Due to a death in his parish, Rev. Fr. Wm A. Gorey, pastor of St. Sabinas church in Chicago and former pastor of St. Michael's church of Orland Park, who was to have been the speaker of the evening, was unable to be present and at the last moment his place was taken by Sherman S. Knox. The theme upon which Fr. Gorey was to have spoken was Active Spiritual Faith and enlarging on this Mr. Knox spoke on the premise No Nation can be great, nor long survive without active Spiritual Faith. The guidance of spiritual growth and the development of moral standards should be shared by home, school, church and community.

A reading, "The story of the origin of the Hymn, Silent Night" was read by Mrs. Howard Creer and a number of Christmas carols directed by Mrs. Edward Manning and lead by Mrs. Geo. Gee Jr. were sung by the audience.

The program closed with the reading of A Soldier's Gift by Mr. Knox, after which the audience stood with bowed heads, for a moment of silent prayer and Christmas greetings to the boys who are serving their country throughout the world.

Following the program while the refreshments were being prepared, an interesting and amusing quiz contest on musical subjects was conducted by Mrs. Knox.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Richard Farr, Mrs. Robt. Ebeling, Mrs. Thomas Cooper, Mrs. Geo. Steinhagen and Mrs. Thos. Wheeler.

NEW BEEF PRICE CEILING

A new beef price ceiling, placing the country on a zone basis with flat dollars and cents quotations ruling for various grades of the product within the zone and a spread between each class of beef is the latest development in the cattle situation. The new order is likely to result in a low set of markets during the period of readjustment.

Chicago territory roof rates specified in the latest regulation are: AA, $22.50; A, $21.50; B, $19.50; C, $17.50. These letters interpreted to everyday terms mean: Choice, good, commercial and utility, respectively. Canner and cutter beef is quoted $2 per cwt. under utility and the ceiling on bull meat is $16.50.

Hogs are not arriving in anticipated numbers and top offerings early this week, at $14, stood highest in a month. Lambs are on the highest basis since 1929 so far as a December is concerned. The OPA allowed the ceiling on mutton to automatically expire and aged sheep responded with a sharp price advance.

Huge slaughter during November resulted in total stocks of meat increasing last month. On December 1 holdings were 10 per cent more than a month earlier, yet the supply is smallest for a December since 1939. A decrease in pork to the smallest December volume in seven years brought down the current volume. However, we now have on hand the second largest December reserves of beef since 1919 and the most lamb and mutton for anytime since 1920. The lard total is least for any month since late in 1937.

Palos Park

Dorothy Robson

Well, here I am again. You know a bad penny always turns up again. To account for my absence in this column for the last three weeks I can truthfully say it was not for my own pleasure. Old man flu-pneumonia caught up with me and I spent that time in bed—not willingly, but forceably by the doctor. Now to see if there has been anything doing in this town since my absence!

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Powell and family entertained Bob Carson of the Marines last week. He was home on a furlough from New York and visited his wife and friends in Palos. He has left for duty again and hopes to be back home in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Adams and family visited the Oscar Strand family last week.

The Girl Scouts, under the guidance of Mrs. Carl Peterson, are collecting yarn and hose for Uncle Sam. A special box is in the Village hall ready and waiting to be filled. Please make your deposit now. If you would like to make a donation and have no way of delivering it, call Miss Patsy Reed at Palos 584R. The girls are still selling War stamps corsages for $1.00. That is a wonderful idea for many of your Christmas gifts. The afternoon of the 21st, the girls will hold their Christmas party at the home of their leader, Mrs. Carl Peterson.

Mrs. Frank Powell spent Friday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ted Willard in Joliet. She returned home Saturday afternoon loaded down with Xmas packages.

Due to gas rationing, Weir and McCord schools will hold a party for the children only. No evening performance will be given, much to the disappointment of the pupils, parents and friends.

Happy Birthday Department
Walter Beagley of Orland Park celebrated his birthday Tuesday and Frank Powell celebrated his Friday. Happy birthday boys, and many more of them!

Blood donors from Palos Heights

Palos, Orland, Worth and Palos and Worth townships thronged the Palos Park Village hall a week ago Saturday on the occasion of the arrival day on the occasion of the arrival of the Red Cross mobile unit. Over-night the village hall had been transformed into a hospital, and when the Unit arrived, a staff of more than 20 doctors, nurses, nurse's aides, Grey Ladies, Canteen Workers and secretaries immediately began the work of obtaining the precious blood for the Red Cross Plasma Bank. This was under the sponsorship of the Palos Woman's Club, and was assisted by other nearby organizations. Mrs. J. L. Collins and her chairman, Mrs. Martin Olsen worked hard to make the affair a success, and Mrs. Clarence JJansen and her chairman, Mrs. Paul Sligh-tam, did fine work in the Heights. The entire staff of the mobile unit were honored guests at a luncheon given by the Woman's Club at the home of Mrs. Geo. B. Ward. It is understood that the Unit will make a return call within the next three months. All those who donated blood at this call agreed to do it again at some later date.

Mrs. Gordon Powell and family and Mrs. Oscar Strand and daughter Norma spent Saturday afternoon shopping in Joliet.

Dorothy Robson has received word that her brother, James is stationed at Camp McQuaide, Cal., after enlisting a month ago. The Robson family is well represented in this man's army, for besides James, there is cousin John in S. Dakota and his brother Frank in New Jersey and another brother Herb will leave shortly. So Japs you better watch out!

TWO-FISTED JEFFERS

Rubber Czar Bill Jeffers lived up to his two-fisted reputation when testifying at a closed meeting of the house interstate commerce subcommittee which was probing the need of nation-wide gas rationing.

Jeffers bluntly told the subcommittee, headed by Representative Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico, that congressional efforts to block the rationing program would get nowhere.

"I understand the position of you gentlemen, but I want you also to understand mine," said the rubber administrator. "My job is to carry out the recommendations of the Baruch report and I intend to do it." Jeffers said he hoped to keep the nation "on rubber," so we will have sufficient transportation for workers in war industries. Nation-wide gas rationing is an essential step in this direction, he added, "and I'm all for it."

The rubber boss was questioned closely on whether Leon Henderson was co-operating with him. He replied that it was difficult to be the price administrator and also handle rationing, since the two things are contradictory. As price chief, Henderson was supposed to protect the public, while as rationing director he is depriving the public of something, Jeffers explained.

Several members of the subcommittee continued to fire leading questions about Henderson, hoping Jeffers would take a poke at the OPA boss. They pointed out that it was Henderson who had initiated the nation-wide gas rationing program and that the rubber administration and the Office of Defense Transportation were forced to go along, whether they approved of the program or not.

"I guess you were the victim of a cigar that was too big to be chewed," commented Representative Hatton Sumners of Texas.

"What do you mean?" shot back Jeffers. "I can chew a pretty big one."

"You misunderstood Mr. Sumners," broke in L. D. Tompkins, Jeffers' assistant. "By cigar he meant Leon Henderson." The rubber boss laughed but made no comment.

ADMIRAL DARLAN

Co-operation with Admiral Darlan continues to cause controversy inside the cabinet and among the war chiefs.

Admiral Darlan's support saved priceless time and even more priceless lives. But it had its difficulties. Many members of the European underground which had been working with us against the Nazis in the occupied countries threw up their hands and got extremely skeptical about playing ball with us in the future.

However, there is definite evidence that Darlan, though an opportunist, several months ago was ready to co-operate with the United States if there was any promise that we would really set up a second front.

Now that we have used Darlan, some people want to throw him overboard immediately. But the weakness of Hitler is that he breaks agreements overnight. Our strength is that we don't break agreements. However, we are now in the dilemma of breaking a tacit agreement with the anti-Vichy group made earlier, or breaking with Darlan now.

TIN CAN CO-OPERATION

The Washington Merry-Go-Round salutes Milltown, N. J., for its tin can exchange plan.

Officials in Washington have been pulling and hauling over the tin can collection problem. There were wrangles over de-tinning facilities, and other wrangles over the best methods of collection. In New York city, cans came in so fast, the dirty mixed with the clean, that detinning plants couldn't handle them, and Mayor LaGuardia was forced to revise the campaign.

Meantime, the borough of Milltown, population 3,500, has instituted a plan of its own which makes Washington sit up and take notice. It is called the "can-for-can exchange plan." If a housewife wants to buy a can of soup, she must bring along a prepared empty can, to be surrendered in exchange. If she has no empty, she must pay two cents extra for the new can.

A prepared can is one which has been cleaned and flattened, with both ends and the label removed. In this form, cans can be shipped economically and de-tinned efficiently.

Note: Milltown, near New Brunswick, in the center of the state, is not to be confused with Leon Henderson's home town of Millville, in south Jersey.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Admiral Halsey, tough commander in the South Pacific, got to know the Axis as naval attaché in Berlin.

Texas' Lyndon Johnson, proposing to FDR that Maury Maverick be appointed head of a Mexican-American defense commission, said: "Would you mind calling up Sumner Welles at the state department and asking him to see Maverick?" "Oh," said the President, throwing up his hands, "Sumner just wouldn't understand a man like Maury."

Small Children Need

Special Care During

Holiday's Excitement

At Christmas time it is generally an accepted thing that each member of the household requires, and should get a handling which is very close to being called "special."

But it is the two-year-olds, or close to that, who really require special handling. Excitement is in the air. Even though excitement is a healthy emotion, too much of it is quite upsetting to the very small child.

For the two-year-old child the toys should be quite simple. The kind that makes them open their eyes wide, enables them to put them to a practical use, will stand a "good beating," and will not be the kind that will frighten or excite them.

Child training specialists, after observing many young children, also suggested that since a small child becomes tired very quickly from excitement, the parent should see that he gets his regular afternoon nap. They say parents won't be doing any kindness by letting him stay up.

Another thing is to prepare for him food which does look festive and different, but which will not put too great a strain on his delicate digestion.

Parents might open the little lady's, or little fellow's, gifts, but it is hinted that it will be the wisest thing to give the little one just one or two of the gifts at a time. Enthusiasm shouldn't be expected over each gift received. It will take time for their little minds to figure out something to do with it, and until they do, it isn't worth much.

Junior's Military Toys

Made Largely of Wood

Santa Claus' helpers anticipate a boom in military toys. You have noticed some of the advertisements and window displays already.

During the past four or five months the busy men at the North Pole have been making Springfield and Garand rifles entirely of wood, wooden machine guns which sound with an uncanny rat-a-tat-tat.

There will be few, very few lead soldiers. Most of them will be made of cardboard and plastics. Instead of the following toys being made from metal, wood will be used instead: Parade guns, cannons, anti-aircraft guns, forts, planes, jeeps, tanks, field ambulances, battleships, submarines and barges for Commandos.

Junior will be in civilian defense, too, when he gets his presents at Christmas time. There will be doctors' and nurses' outfits, air raid warden kits and blackout sets—all made of non-essential materials.

Christmas Cards Traced
To Reign of Victoria

One of Queen Victoria's favorite painters, W. C. Dobson, is credited as being the originator of the present-day Christmas card custom. In 1845 he dispatched lithograph copies of a greeting card to his friends.

Prior to the exchanging of cards, Christmas letters were written to one's relatives and acquaintances.

Humorous
Side

Prime Condition

"You haven't looked so well for years, old man!"
"Ah, it's the exercise I get, tossing about in bed at night worrying about the business."

Curious Lad

Golfer—Dear, dear. I'm certainly not playing the game I used to play!
Caddie (disgustedly) — What game was that?

The way some secretaries type the boss' letters is a triumph of mind over matter.

Caught Him

"MacPherson's a cheat, and I'm not going to play golf with him again."

"How's that?"
"Well, how could he have lost his ball a yard from the green when it was in my pocket?"

In Duplicate

Barber—Well, my little man, how do you wish to have your hair cut?

Little Man—I'd like it cut just like my daddy's, and please don't forget to leave that little round hole on the top where his head comes through.

Asking for Trouble

The door of the ladies' hairdressing shop opened and in came a meek-looking little man.

One of the assistants approached him.

"What can I have the pleasure—"

she cooed.

"Er—could you spare me a blonde hair for my shoulder?" he stammered.

"I want to make my wife jealous."

Fell for Her

"Fortune knocks at least once at every man's door."

"That may be. But it was her daughter, Miss Fortune, who called on me."

Orson Welles Introduces
Many of Him to a Few

Orson Welles, of "Citizen Kane" fame, once gave a small town lecture. There were but few listeners and no chairman present. So he up and introduced himself in the following fashion:

"I am a director of plays," he said. "I am a producer of plays. I am an actor on the legitimate stage. I am a writer of motion pictures. I am a producer of motion pictures. I am a motion-picture actor. I write, direct, and act for the radio. I am a magician. I also paint and sketch. I am a publisher. I am a violinist and a pianist. Isn't it a shame that there are so many of me and so few of you?"

Our Telephones

In this country today, the 25 associated Bell telephone companies serve 7,128 communities having 18,841,000 telephones, while 6,350 independent companies serve 12,072 communities having 4,609,000 telephones, reports Collier's. In addition, there are more than 60,000 connecting rural lines owned by groups of farmers.

Uncle Phil

We Offer the 23rd Psalm

Our language, used by an artist, can produce something as grand as anything heard at a symphony concert. An example: Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Well-bred people are a delight, and often an object of envy.

We delight to indulgently smile over the peculiarities of the friends we love.

The only fun worth having is the kind that is still funny when you get up the next morning.

It's So Exciting, Too!

Since millions enjoy headlines more than any other part of the newspaper, why not try one that is mostly headlines?

It is often easier for a woman to hold a strong man than her own tongue.

Beauty is only skin deep, and often the look of wisdom, also.

Usually a narrow-minded man doesn't care if he is, and you can't shame him in that.

NOW CAR OWNERS CAN BUY
THE NEW
Firestone
WAR TIRE

YES—It's true! If your present tires cannot be recapped, you are eligible to apply for a certificate to buy the new Firestone War Tire no matter whether you hold an "A", "B" or "C" gasoline ration book.

The new Firestone War Tire is now on sale at Firestone Dealers and Firestone Stores. Its construction has been tested and proved by more than two years of service. Naturally, you'd expect Firestone to build the best War Tire that can be built, because Firestone has always been a pioneer in developing new processes and creating new products made from rubber. And with its unequalled background of experience in building tires that successfully withstand the most gruelling tests of durability and safety, it is not surprising that Firestone is building a War Tire with such exclusive features as:

Safti-Lock, Gum-Dipped Cord Body—same construction that has made Firestone Tires so strong, so safe, so durable on the road as well as on the Speedway. The body of the new Firestone War Tire is built to outwear several treads and can be recapped for thousands of miles of extra service.

Firestone Non-Skid Tread—famous for performance and protection against skidding.

Vitamic Rubber—made by adding a new wear-resisting rubber vitamin, called "Vitalin."

If your present tires can be recapped—be sure to have them recapped by the Firestone Factory Controlled Method. Firestone has the largest system of recapping shops in America, strategically located to give you better service. This nation-wide system is strictly supervised and uniform in workmanship. For longer mileage, bring your tires to us for recapping.

COME IN AND SEE IT! The new Firestone War Tire is now ready for the car owners of America. Your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Store will be glad to help you make out an application for a tire rationing certificate.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Incomes of Farm and Industrial Groups

A comparative picture of the incomes of the farm and industrial groups in this country is given in charts furnished by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics and used recently by Senator Clyde M. Reed in remarks before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency. The figures give an interesting picture of what the present contention concerning price and wage ceilings is all about. The following tabulations speak for themselves:

Net Income From Agriculture Per Person on Farms	Income Per Person Not on Farms
1910 $139.00	$482.00
1920 265.00	876.00
1930 170.00	761.00
1940 179.00	717.00
1941 254.00	826.00

Average Net Farm Income Per Person Engaged in Agriculture	Wage Income Per Industrial Worker
1910 $371.00	$ 573.00
1920 733.00	1,411.00
1930 489.00	1,249.00
1940 527.00	1,268.00
1941 742.00	1,484.00

Our American way of life, with equal opportunity, is based upon the philosophy of the Golden Rule; and while agriculture must and will give its all in the war effort, it is in the long run entitled to equal consideration in our national economy with other groups.

Discussing this subject, Prairie Farmer says:

"The question is not whether there shall be 100 per cent or 110 or 150 per cent of parity prices. All such demands by the farm bloc have put the farm folks in a very poor light with the rest of the nation.

"This is war. It is not the time to attempt to arrive at complete equity, because what is equitable today is not so tomorrow. The great question before the nation today is whether there shall be enough manpower on farms next season to produce the food which will win the war. Certainly our nation is going to see that this labor is provided."

Correcting Abuses

"Private enterprise in any field can be regulated. The abuses of private enterprise can be corrected and the abusers punished. But no one has yet found a solution to the problem of government grown too great—government abuses." — Exchange.

Husbanding Our Resources

"Patriotism and prudence combine in insistence upon early effective steps to dispense with every unnecessary exaction upon the Treasury."—Washington Review.

"Rented Money"

Over eight million American citizens have invested a portion of their earnings or profits in the business and industries of this country. They have no intention of taking any part in the management or in deciding the policies of a particular business. They save a part of their income for a rainy day and after careful investigation "rent" their savings to a business organization they believe to be sound. This rented money year after year is the life stream of American industry. This is popularly called our "capitalistic" system.

Since 1932, American business has depleted its reserves by over 20 billion dollars. In 1941, the net dividends to stockholders were $1,295,000,000 less than the dividends of 1929. Taxation today takes much more of corporate income than is received by the stockholder.

The "Income-Before-Taxes" Evil. Phil S. Hanna, prominent financial writer, protests against reports by business of "income before payment of taxes." Taxes are just as much a cost of doing business as wages, insurance or the raw product. Certainly no farmer would think of computing his profit by the amount of grain raised on his farm and sold during any year, without deducting his cost of labor and his taxes on the land which produced the grain.

All of this adds up to the question of where we are going to get money to keep business in operation after this war is over; where are we going to get money with which to build new business, or to re-tool present factories making war munitions to peacetime activities, unless we permit common stockholders, the people who have rented their savings to business, to receive honest rent for their savings?

Thrift and economy have for many years been counted as virtues. Many a father has warned his children against buying luxuries, or even necessities, on any system of partial payments. Our whole economic system—big and little—is tied together and depends for its life-blood upon its ability to attract the savings and profits of workers and small business men.

Whether when this war is over we are driven to national socialism or retain our American way of life, with its free opportunities and our time-tested economic system, largely turns upon whether the man who has $100 or $1,000 to invest can collect his money rent, and has the confidence to continue to invest his savings in American business enterprise.
